

Micro Lenders Get ₹80,000 crore Credit Guarantee Boost as Funding Stress

Programme will be implemented outside the union budget framework

New Delhi: The Expenditure Finance Committee (EFC) has approved an ₹80,000 crore credit guarantee scheme to support microfinance institutions, officials aware of the matter said, providing governments back to a sector that has been facing increased delinquencies and difficulty in raising funds.

The microfinance industry had sought a credit guarantee package of ₹80,000 crore. The EFC worked out the plan after the Department of Financial Services forwarded the industry request to the Department of Expenditure. "The scheme will be announced once it is cleared by the Cabinet," a senior official told ET. The relief will be provided through the National Credit Guarantee Trustee Company. The offer is aimed at incentivising banks to extend credit to MFIs, especially to small players that are facing a funding stress amid persistent asset quality issues and limited access to bank finance.

scenarios provided banks a cover for up to 75% of the loan amount in case there was a default. As the scheme held promise for funding stress, the government accepted to provide a 30% relief if asset quality showed signs of stress from 2024. Medium and small micro lenders were the most affected and the sector badly wanted government backing amid the credit crunch. "Although the microfinance sector has overcome the troubles of the past two years, it is unable to go forward due to a lack of funding support," said Jiji Mathew, executive director of Sa-Dhan, a self-help group for the sector. "We are still able to get funds, but banks are very reluctant to give money to mid-size and small microfinance institutions," he said, adding, "The credit guarantee by the government will boost the confidence of the banks to lend to these institutions." The relief under the microfinance sector fell 3% quarter on quarter and 16% from a year earlier in the 38th ended September, according to a 58th report published last month.

'Global Energy Markets Start 2026 with Ample Supply & Stable Prices'

New Delhi: Global energy markets have begun 2026 with 'abundant' supplies of energy in terms of availability of oil, gas and renewables, and a relatively stable price environment, according to Dave Ernberger, president of S&P Global Energy. Oil prices are expected to average slightly below $60 per barrel through the year and hover just above that level over the following decade, according to the global energy and commodities market intelligence provider. "There's more oil, more gas, and more renewable energy coming to market than at any time in history, and we see that reflected in the prices," Ernberger told ET. And "the relatively low, relatively stable prices are encouraging faster economic growth and even faster technology growth than we had previously expected."

He said stable prices are providing a solid foundation for the world economy. That is, the energy industry and giving time and space to stakeholders to think about investments in energy. "That's very true in India, where there is a great deal of discussion going on between the balance between oil, gas, hydrogen, and renewables in the economy here," Ernberger said. However, electricity systems face challenges. While primary energy supplies remain plenty, logistical and supply chain bottlenecks are emerging as a critical constraint, particularly in data centres and AI infrastructure, he said. "AI infrastructure drive a sharp rise in power demand, and so, for electricity, there are pretty severe logistical issues that are resulting in the distribution and transmission of electricity through bottlenecks. And it comes down to the capacity and the maturity of the electricity transmission network more than the availability of electricity itself," Ernberger said. The concern that people have is, if these bottlenecks are not solved, power generation is rapped up, "potentially quickly, then there will be alternative found for meeting the AI demand," he said. At the same time, suppliers are weighing the possibility that AI could become more efficient and it may not need all the power as people would expect. "There is a lot of people investing in the power industry," Ernberger said. "Ironically, it could be inevitable if the power industry can't invest fast enough to meet those demands."

GLOBAL TRADE FLOWS
The global trade flows will continue to update based on trade agreement (FTA) conversations that are going on between different trading blocs, he said, adding that these will partly be in reaction to the US tariff policy, and partly because of how economies are already developing. "I think the EU and the UK have been keen on developing trade agreements with India for many years, but a decade ago, as India has taken on a bigger role in more global economic activity areas," Ernberger said. "The US has been very active in the US, but it's partly the nature of global evolution anyway, I would argue, that those deals were under negotiation. It's not clear if there is a general agreement that the supply chain around them needs to be diversified. Ultimately, we are going to see multiple supply chains to meet the three big criteria of being affordable, sustainable, and secure," he said.

Seasonally Adjusted IIP Series in the Works

New Delhi: The statistics ministry is considering introducing seasonally adjusted Industrial Production (IIP) to provide a clearer view of industrial activity as seasonal and calendar-related factors often distort monthly economic comparisons, according to a discussion paper released on Wednesday. Currently, India does not publish official seasonally adjusted IIP data. Adopting such a measure would bring India in line with global best practices, as countries like the United States, China, France, United Kingdom, South Africa and members of the European Union regularly release seasonally adjusted IIP figures. The ministry of statistics and public relations, seasonal adjustment (SAP) in work countries to the IIP base year in 2025-26. From 2023-24, with the new series scheduled for release by May 30. "Seasonal adjustment is widely recognised as essential for ensuring the interpretability, reliability, and analytical usefulness of high-frequency economic indicators such as the IIP" according to the discussion paper. "By removing predictable seasonal fluctuations, seasonal adjustment helps to identify short-term movements in the series more accurately, rather than seasonal economic developments caused by seasonal adjustments. However, the paper noted that seasonal adjustment of the new IIP series can be undertaken only after five years of time-series data becomes available, in line with international recommendations. —Our Bureau speaking at an event organised by the IBBI and Insoad India in the capital. The government had, in August last year, introduced a bill in the Lok Sabha to amend the IBC, proposing amendments, including a creditor-led resolution process to deal with delays and provisions for cross-border and group insolvency frameworks. The bill was then referred to a select House committee, which submitted its report last month. "Despite these achievements, several challenges still remain, which include identifying promoters, running the risk of losing control, resulting in value deterioration, low realisations to creditors and capacity constraints at the insolvency process," he said. "He also flagged delays in the periodic review of large accounts of state-run banks at various stages of the insolvency process, including on lenders for collaboration with the IBBI to expedite the process."

'IBC Tweaks to Align Indian Laws with Global Regime: IBBI

DGM to Start Driving at Critical Mineral Projects this Quarter

New Delhi: Deccan Gold Mines (DGM) projects in India and overseas this quarter. The company is exploring a nickel (Ni), copper (Cu), and platinum group elements (PGEs) block in Chhatissgarh, Madhya Pradesh. Managing director, DGM, said, "We are also planning small-scale processing facilities with provision for future expansion with the objective of achieving this by mid-2027," said Modali. Last November, DGM announced a target of producing "0.5 tonnes gold per year" in India, and "100 tonnes gold per year" in about one tonne of gold per year and produce nearly 700 tonnes. On the current rally in the price of the yellow metal, the impact on DGM, Modali said mining and processing have remained relatively stable over the years, with only marginal inflationary pressures. "Any sustained increase in gold prices will lead to a more aggressive investment in top-line performance and overall project economics for production assets," he said.

Fertiliser Imports Rise as Local Production Falls This Fiscal

New Delhi: India imported 85% more urea, 46% more DAP and 22% more NPK fertilisers in the first 10 months of this fiscal year compared with a year earlier, according to provisional data released Wednesday by the Fertiliser Association of India (FAI). Urea sales rose 3.8% year-on-year to 31.16 million tonnes during the first 10 months period, even as domestic production declined 3.2% to 22.44 million tonnes. Higher imports helped meet demand during peak crop sowing months of the fertilizer year. Sales of 45-million phosphate (DAP) moder-
